Probable Course of Gold and Gov-

Monday the New York gold market was weak and lower, despite the expected specie exports and the small amount of coin held by the banks ($19,600,000). The belief is it is the policy of the Treasury to depress gold and the expectation that next month will witness free sales for Government account had a weakening influence which the firm tone of the London market encouraged. Some large amounts of long gold were also thrown on the market. The low condition of the bank reserves and ernments, gold were also thrown on the market. The low condition of the bank reserves and that probability that a currency drain this week will still further draw them down, had no appreciable effect upon the money market, which rules easy. In discounts there is a fair business done at going rates. Wednesday the Treasury buys 2,000,000 bends and will sell $1,000,000 in gold Thursday. The excess of the bond pur-Thursday. The excess of the bond purchase over the gold sales operates in favor of easy money. The lower range of gold in its effect on Government bonds is scarcely equalized by the higher Foreign markets and the entire list continues dull and in the main heavy. The new funding process goes on more satisfactorily than process goes on more satisfactorily take heretofore, the subscriptions from private individuals being somewhat on the increase and the National banks taking largely. Nachville Plour and Grain Market. FLOUR-Is without material change since our last report. The market is extremely dull, with very few transactions. Sales are confined to the home trade, there being no order demand from the South. Some shipments have been made, but on consignment only. The supply of wheat on hand is small, and as none is coming in, our mills will soon be forced to suspend pperations for the season, when we may look for more activity and stiff prices. We notice no change in prices except for outside brands. The better grades of family and faucy are held at $8 and $0 respectively, though some brands of these grades not favorably known, are sold from 25c to 50c less. We quote as follows: Superfine $5,25; extra $5,75; XX $6,50; family $7.50 ©8; fancy $8.50@9.

WHEAT. - Supply nearly exhausted and receipts light, and all that is offered is taken to fill Southern orders, as our mills are not in the market.
